

Dear Tony

I read with utter shock that the Government is even considering reducing the protection of our oceans. Many of these areas are marine park conservation areas and are hugely important in the protection, conservation and migratory elements of many creatures.

Please, let the government know to not reduce our marine protection areas. If anything, increase them and promote wonderful ecotourism which is far more sustainable than allowing greedy corporate bodies to make short term financial game. Show the world that Australia is a leader in this field.

Kind regards
