

At the time when the Great Barrier Reef is under severest stress, it is unacceptable that the waters off Queensland could be stripped of the protection needed to ensure longevity of the reef and surrounding ecosystems.

Diversity and sanctuary must be protected. Scientists warn that decreased fish diversity and numbers will selectively allow the expansion of other species. World oceans dominated by jellyfish is one realistic scenario.

This is not a legacy that the current Government would wish to leave.

Regards Axl Driml

Sent from Mail for Windows 10