

Please reconsider the proposed excision of currently protected marine parks to be open to commercial fishing.

The proportion of fish left in the seas is only 10% of original numbers because of overfishing. This puts huge environmental stress on marine environments. Commercial fishing will devastate it further. There will be no fish left for future generations who will inherit the earth. Global warming is putting untold additional stresses on the seas. We need to urgently protect our environment. Our marine environment is fragile. Maintaining the current marine parks is an important contribution in it's protection.

Yours sincerely,

Dr Leah Power
