

Tony,

Our oceans are vitally important to the worlds ecosystems. So far we have polluted them with radioactive waste, the amount of plastic pollution will be shortly greater than the amount of fish in the oceans which our govt goes nothing about, we overfish the seas with out giving fish a sanctuary to build up stocks. How bout you do something productive and stop kowtowing to your big corporate mates and start considering how we can make this earth a better place. One place you can start is to build up our national park and marine sanctuaries so that mankind can benefit from the environmental services that they provide. You can also come up with a policy that stops all the plastic microfibrres building up in our water supply and in the worlds oceans which we and all water drinking animals are ingesting. Do something meaning full. Otherwise your just another useless politician.

Regards

Greg Moeliker

Sent from my iPhone