

With so much marine life under threat from over fishing and pollution - world population growth still growing, something has to be left where marine life can have some chance of survival. It is deplorable that you are planning to cut protected areas by 50%.

You will not win the next election and just the thought of destroying protected marine areas will turn people against you even further