

My family and I love Australia's oceans: for holidays, recreation, and for the seafood! Our marine ecosystems are also vital for biodiversity, as a source of food and medicines, and for much of our tourism industry.

I am therefore alarmed to learn that the federal government is winding back many of our ocean protections, including in the Coral Sea, the Marion Reef and Osprey Reef.

I would urge the government to reconsider reducing the protections of our ocean, and instead to help to conserve these precious resources for ours and my childrens' generation.

Yours sincerely,

Kate Charlesworth
