

Dear Minister Frydenberg

I hope you actually read my musings.....

It concerns me greatly and furthermore that our current Australian government is so willing to make such drastic changes to laws that were passed only a few years ago and inaugurated previously by its own, to ensure that at least some of Australia's coastal habitat was spared the wrath of economic degradation.

It seems that the future of our marine ecosystems is not at all important and certainly less important for your government than the farcical postal vote for equality, in terms of transparency, media attention and parliamentary time.

Why would you reverse laws that offer some protection to such a vulnerable and already depleted and unstable environment? Why would any caring, aware, educated human want to enable such a precious resource to be further degraded?

Are you not worried for our children and the miserable lives they will inevitably live, thanks to inadequate but also destructive government decisions, of which this is not a first for your current Government. ie. Adani and NAIF; Great Barrier Reef and UNESCO listing.....; NSW counterparts – Threatened Species Conservation Act, NPW Act, Environmental Planning and Assess Act revocation and replacement with lax legislation guaranteed to enable gross vegetation clearing , habitat and wildlife losses.

It's simply unbelievable that despite the vast bodies of evidence recommending Governments heed the signs, that we merrily go dancing into a future that will not be able to support human life, having killed off everything else in its way.

You simply CAN'T LET IT HAPPEN!!!!!!!

Sincerely

Kim Kindler
