

If anything we should be considering increasing the protections for our oceans, not cutting them. These are ecosystems already suffering stress from human impact. Pollution, over fishing, and global warming are all negatively affecting marine environments. Somewhere along the way humans forgot that we share this planet; that it is not solely ours for our use.

Please increase, don't decrease, protections for our marine parks.

Kind Regards,
Grant Morgan

Sent from my iPhone