

Minister Frydenberg,

Cutting back protection in our Marine Parks is an appalling proposal, the marine coastline of Australia is for the future of all Australians, not for a minority of professional fisherman for short term raping of a marine species, this country led the world in coastal protection for the future and was praised for doing so, that there would be marine species left around our shores for the future. There is no future in long line fishing in our country.

Minister Frydenberg,

Cutting back protection in our Marine Parks is an appalling proposal, the marine coastline of Australia is for the future of all Australians, not for a minority of professional fisherman for short term raping of a marine species, this country led the world in coastal protection for the future and was praised for doing so, that there would be marine species left around our shores for the future. There is no future in long line fishing in our country.