

Dear Minister Frydenberg,

Please don't make any cuts to our marine sanctuaries. I am baffled why this government seems to have so little understanding of sustainability. There is no need at all for cuts, but a huge need for increased conservation, so please don't drag us further backwards.

The Turnbull government, and previous Abbott government, have shown themselves to be uncomprehending about conservation and sustainability issues in every way. Australia's commitments to sustainability are a now global embarrassment. We used to be followed by the world.

Your government has done so much irreversible damage in the past four years, but we can at least still protect our marine ecosystems.
Please, do so!!

Regards,
Juliet Corley
