

Dear Minister Frydenberg,

I urge you to reconsider reducing the areas of oceans that are currently under protection.

These protections were hard won with massive support from concerned citizens. Undoing this protection shows scant regard for the clearly voiced wishes of so many Australians as well as a scandalous lack of care for our marine environment.

Have a look at Tim Winton's Battle for Ningaloo Reef for inspiration to change this devastating decision.

What would you like your government's legacy to be?

Please think again.

Kind regards

Karen South
