

Dear Minister Frydenberg,

I'm writing to put my voice in favor of protecting Australia's marine parks. It may be tempting to mine these areas for financial rewards now, but these are the very systems that support habitable life on this planet. Once they have been decimated and all the profits extracted, we are left with a barren wasteland. Please consider the long term affects of repealing the protections put into place and the long term value of preserving these fragile and critically important ecosystems.

All the best,
