

Dear Minister,

I join the ranks of the many disenchanted with the decision to remove large areas from the current Marine National Park precincts.

Having recently travelled around 12,000 km hugging Australia's coastline in WA and SA, admiring the pristine areas and wonderful breeding grounds for Humpback and Southern Right whales, I am appalled to see a short term disregard for nature.

Greed seems to have become an all-consuming characteristic of decision makers.

You should be ashamed of yourself.

Maybe after the next election you will have more time in Opposition to contemplate the ramifications of this misguided policy.

Faithfully,

David Curtis
