

As a diver, a passionate designer, a daughter, a wife, a believer in good.
I implore you to reconsider cutting marine protections.

The world needs leaders like you, who can make decisions that mean our next generations aren't being handed down a degraded landscape, a broken ecosystem, a world where our big blue is facing so many challenges we will be running round after ourselves trying to fix what we broke.

Let's leave our oceans protected and allow them to thrive. As we want to as people.

design as a powerful conduit for change.

As the messages, artefacts and experiences we create pass through the hands, minds, and hearts of people, we have an opportunity to weave positive change into the broader fabric of culture and to shift consumption and lifestyle aspirations to a more abundant basis for living.
