

It is with great concern that I am writing this email expressing my dismay in relation to the changes that are being proposed to the marine sanctuaries. Australia is a lucky country to be surrounded by such pristine waters and to know these are at risk is devastating.

Having travelled to many countries overseas and witnessed the degradation of their coast lines I always felt privileged to be an Australian.

These changes in policies will lead to the end of any government proposing to change them and rightly so.

Written with concern

Jill Millburn