

To whom it may Concern

I do not, DO NOT, believe that reducing the areas of marine parks is the answer.

Too often we learn after a decision that it is wrong. Take the case of the humble cane toad which is now a threat as far away as Kakadu.

We should stand strong in our decisions so that the Marine Parks are protected. We need Marine life to be enjoyed by future generations.

Direct financial gain should not be influencing our decisions above the cost to a community. If we put a dollar value on quality of life (meaning protecting beautiful areas), I believe it would outweigh any economic benefit.

Please ensure that there is no reduction in marine parks.

Yours sincerely

Pam Tait

Sent from my iPhone