

cutting 50% of the marine parks is such a bad thing to do..midwater trawling and longline fishing??you got to be kidding..with the state of the environment ,globally, reducing protected areas goes in the opposite direction of which mankind should be travelling..i realise the Inp coalition are funded by those that only care about profit and are more inclined to listen to business lobby groups but as a 60 y.o. single parent whos son is 14 i am concerned for the future i will not be here to see...protection of the land ,seas and air are things that have been neglected for decades...it is time to get real ,serious and protect the future for the coming generation
