

We have some of the most diverse and amazing ocean life in the world here in Australia. We also have many species with dangerously low numbers. The chain of Marine conservation areas that have been established are a credit to this country and vital in protecting marine animals. To even consider closing them for industrial profit is beyond reckless, it's downright criminal! We should instead be introducing laws to safeguard our sanctuaries for generations to come.