

It is vital that Australia preserve and even enlarge its existing marine sanctuaries. These areas provide vital spawning grounds and respite for commercial and other species that are under extreme pressure both environmental and from fishing.

As a fisherman, I strongly oppose any reduction in marine sanctuaries as it will be detrimental to the long-term sustainability of the industry.

--

Allan Barnes.
0403-948-928