

To the Minister for the Environment,

I am very concerned to learn that the Federal Government is looking to cut back protections of our oceans. This is an absolute backwards step and one that future generations will most certainly frown upon. Our oceans are vital to our health, our way of life, and to the health of the planet. We need our oceans to be healthy so that they can do their job effectively.

I urge you to listen to the experts in this field: our marine scientists and our ecologists. They are the experts in this area and we are fortunate to have access to their knowledge and sound predictions.

Please, leave the current Marine National Parks in place.

Sincerely,

Angeline Anthony
