

Keep our Marine Sanctuaries

These sanctuaries are important for fish stock health.

Where can the fish keep healthy levels if there is open slather for all types of fishing along our coastlines.

These sanctuaries were put in place years ago and have kept our fish stocks and other marine animals so we have a sustainable variety of fish for our food and the environment.

I wonder if the reason they want to remove these sanctuaries is that all other areas are fished out and these protected ones are all that is left?

Today's fishermen know that we must keep our stock healthy, having no areas left that are kept safe and allowing fish to regenerate means we run out which has happened in many parts of the world.

Stop this hungry grabbing of our precious resources.....keep them safe for our food and enjoyment.

Sally Wilson

Newport NSW 2106