

Marine Management Planning,

The oceans and seas surrounding Australia are of international heritage value as well as being one of this country's biggest geographical, economic and social assets. Successive governments have seen fit to protect the marine ocean and seascapes and its life-forms from unbridled exploitation by fossil fuel companies.

I strongly object to the current government's plans to cut any of our existing marine protection.

Instead of mineral resource exploitation for short-term monetary gain WHY OH WHY cannot this government act on behalf of our wonderful country and the people who live in it NOW and the FUTURE????

This government refuses to listen to the Australian market, businesses, scientists, academics or anyone who provides expert advice which doesn't protect the the fossil fuel industries. They refuse to acknowledge how protection of our environment will provide jobs and sustainable living for the Australian electorate who ultimately will get rid of fossilised party-centric politicians who fail to understand and take action for the sustainable social, economic and and long-term good of our country.

Yours sincerely,

Kipps Horn
