

To the Australian Federal Government.

I formally request that you cease your harmful approach to the oceans and all their inhabitants who have a perfect right to be there. The oceans of the world are vital for the planets' health for the simple reason that they provide the air that we breathe. They must be protected in order to protect humans. We cannot live without air obviously, so whatever the short term commercial gain for lifting protections for our oceans is, the long term consequences are catastrophic. Or perhaps all the politicians in power now will be dead by then? The government has the responsibility to make the right choices now, or the future of the planet will be jeopardized. It's pretty simple. Do the right thing, do it now.

Yours sincerely,
