

WIPING BACK OCEAN PROTECTIONS

I strongly object to the removal of any protections for the current Marine National Parks. Human caused climate change is already making a massive impact on our reefs and oceans. Once damaged or completely destroyed it is very difficult or nigh impossible to re-establish reefs and ocean wildlife.

This removal of protections is another case of human short term, small loop thinking that benefits very few. We do not need more longlining, mid water trawling or recreational fishing.

Maybe we should begin reducing our human population and there wouldn't be this unsustainable demand for ever diminishing resources?

Kind regards
Pat Morris