

This Liberal government is characterised by its disregard of the environment and determination to destroy. Whether it's the Great Barrier Reef, fracking, reduction of marine parks or destruction forests and habitat the Liberals have blindly pushed ahead to reduce, push forward, subsidise or change legislation to allow unacceptable projects to proceed.

Changing Marine Park boundaries is a short sighted dangerous move. Our seas are under enough stress at present. Take for instance Tasmanias west coast salmon farms, where science and politicians said it was ok, only to find as some political parties predicted the opposite would occur and the area became a dead zone. Do we have to wait for catastrophic destruction of sea life before political parties, particularly the Liberals will realise what the consequences of their changes have done.
