

I can't believe that the Australian Government is about to reduce the conservation of our oceans by up to 50%. When is the Government stopping to become a 3rd World Country and counteracting pollution of the oceans among other topics? The view of Australian environmental protection has been criticized by other countries already. It might serve the tourism for a specific length of time but what will happen when our beautiful oceans have become contaminated and tourists stay away? Isn't there any politician in your ranks who is able to think ahead and not only for a short term of 4 years? Midwater trawling is too destructive for any ocean and if you do not know this then it might be a good idea to talk to marine conservatory officers. It never hurts to learn and listen. The beaches and the oceans are not owned by anyone. They were given to us by nature and nobody has the right to make a decision which will result in long term destruction.

M. Metzger
15.09.2017