

We can already see the devastating effects of our failure to protect the Great Barrier Reef, yet the federal government continues to encourage rapacious mega corporations intent only on raking out vast wealth for themselves at the expense of our future - modern day carpet-baggers. We are strongly positioned to move straight into renewable energy production, and Australian industry is just waiting for the government's approval to move forward, creating local long-term sustainable employment and investment opportunities and protecting our environment and unique natural heritage for the continued future enjoyment and benefit of our people.

Dr Amanda Yorke