

Hi

I understand that you are elected officials who are meant to pass laws to better the country but this is ridiculous. The worlds oceans are already over fished. They oceans are so polluted with plastic and you want to halve what is protected so the only places where sea life is safe will no longer be. The oceans and well the whole planet is under so much stress I can get my head around how you think this will benefit Australia. I wish the people elected would stay true to their word and country and have some integrity instead of selling out our countries beauty and wildlife. A quick dollar to destroy our planet is not in the best interest of Australia or its people and you should be ashamed of the decisions you are making. The only people you are representing are yourselves and your mates which are going to get something out of it. Please have more respect for our country and it's inhabitants.

With warmth
