

As a father of the former President of the Surf Rider's Association and grandfather to four children who understand the importance of the oceans for their future living on this planet, I am both enraged by the recent decisions and current proposals the Federal Government of Australia to reduce protection of this fundamental element of the systems of nature upon which we all depend for our survival, and am profoundly fearful of the consequences that future generations of Australians will have to negotiate if you do not immediately return Australia to first position as defenders of the seas.

Yours truly.

Dr John Kendell Graham

In the Beginning, if there was a beginning and everything was not always changing, there was Energy.

And Energy moves in a spiral formation and made everything in the Universe.

So Spirals Work In Concert in all living things.

Spiral on!
