

With the amount humans take from our fisheries, our oceans need all the help they can get.

Decreasing our protected zones is madness.

We need the people who are entrusted to look after all of our best interests to step up to the mark. Long term planning is essential particularly with respect to an environment which is battered to the point of almost no return.

Do your job.

Sher Moller