

It would be embarrassing for Australia to become the wrong kind of world leader.

Winding back protection for our oceans, reducing the size of the Marine National Park, and allowing midwater trawling and long lining in the Coral Sea are all backward steps in a world that needs us to be progressive in our conservation efforts. It would be to Australia's shame and long-term detriment to lead the world in backward steps in conservation. Please don't allow this to happen.

Sincerely,
Melanie Sweeney
PO Box 107
Bargo NSW 2574