

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am most distressed that our current government is considering reducing the area of our Marine National Parks.

It is appalling that this government is looking to abandon its role as custodian of such a large area of natural environment and making it available to be trawled and long line fished.

The lack of concern and action on environmental issues by this Liberal government is a major issue for me.

This Liberal government was elected by a slim majority of Australians and one of your major responsibilities as I see it is to preserve and protect not only our country and its surrounds but also the global environment. The reduction of Australian Oceans under protection, the reckless promotion of coal burning power generation, the lack of direction and policy on renewable energy and the support of the monstrous Adani mine project are all terrible indictments of a government that has lost sight of what they should be doing.

Please reconsider this proposal to reduce the protected area of oceans and do the right thing and leave the environment in a better position than when you came to power.

Kind Regards
Grant Gill
