

It is with disbelief that I read that the Liberal Government is proposing to wind back the marine conservation boundaries established under the previous Labor Government.

The over exploitation of the oceans worldwide and the fact that the oceans do not follow political boundaries mean that supposedly responsible and developed countries should be setting the standards does not seem to be demonstrated by the Government.

This, with the attitude towards energy policy is making me ashamed of my nationality

Colin Leek