

To whom it may concern,

Ocean health and fully replenishing fish stocks are vital, as the science outstandingly affirms.

When Australia takes responsibility for tracts of ocean, and protects them and their denizens, we look after the future of our own people and the world's. We act as a wise guardian for all future generations.

So this is not a 'greenie' issue. It is everyone's. As Tim Winton so emotively and beautifully spelled out in his The Age article yesterday.

Please maintain current protections. Please do not cut back on our ocean sanctuaries.

Thank you for your consideration,
