

To Whom It May Concern,

I am deeply distressed that our oceans are not being protected to the extent that they should. We need to protect our oceans for our children and the next generation. I am a teacher and we have discussed the mass of rubbish in the oceans with the students and what we can do to protect the marine life.

All our reefs need to be protected for the marine life, to be sustainable and for coral to continue to be healthy. Otherwise species will become extinct.

Once the protection of these areas is minimised there is no turning back. We will never be able to repair the damage that will be created. Prevention is much less expensive than trying to fix what we have destroyed, years in the future.

Think of our children,

Kind Regards,

Sophie Wilson
