

Dear Marine Management Planners, Environment Department:

Am I sick to death of governments trashing the environment for what will prove to be a few lousy bucks for their mates on the road to annihilation? Well, yes. Absolutely.

I am sick to death of the NSW government's betrayal of the Murray-Darling scheme. I am sick to death of their dishonest new land clearing laws which will reduce koalas in NSW to nature park curiosities. And koalas will be lucky compared to what will disappear forever.

And I am sick to death of a federal government wanting to decimate hard-fought-for protections for our marine environment, especially the national crown jewel of the Great Barrier Reef. What are they thinking?

Kind Regards

Col Taylor
