

Dear Sir/s, Please do not cut the size of the National Marine Parks. These Marine Parks are necessary for the protection of ocean life because it is where the baby fish are safe to grow up. Without Marine Parks there will be no new fish and many species will die out. It has been proved that to protect all the species we have we need very large Marine Parks. A small park will not provide enough protection.

Yours sincerely,

Pamela and Michael Rabinau