

Have the world oceans not been damaged enough to satisfy investors greed so that politicians need to unwind the protection of Australia's marine reserves and keep depleting our natural capital ever more until nothing is left of the original beauty and mystery of the world ? How violently must we revolt so you understand when enough is enough ? how much misery , ugliness , how much raping is your money worth ?