

To Management Planning

I am writing to submit the strongest objection to the proposed plan to reduce the extent of marine sanctuaries.

I have read through the proposals and can only say no Australian government has ever proposed such lack of foresight as this.
The world will again stand aghast at Australia's actions concerning protection of the environment.

It seems that midwater trawling is again to be allowed which is well known to be enormously damaging to fish stock.

The Government's reputation, concerning its the refusal to protect the Barrier Reef from destruction by proposing the Adan mine i , is already tarnished, and the proposal to remove such a high percentage of protected marine areas area to exploitation and overuse will only harm that reputation further.

Yours sincerely
Marion Armstrong
