

There is a significant and worrying trend by coalition governments (federal and state) that the environment is there for the taking. According to the Global Footprint Network (using data from the UN and others) which measures human impact on the environment, estimates that over the past 2 decades humans have been using more of the earth's natural resources annually than can be replenished, particularly our marine environments. This attack on OUR environment has got to STOP! Please do not remove the protection of our precious marine environments. I'd rather future generations remember us with gratitude rather than contempt.

Yours sincerely

Lucy Gibson

Sent from my iPhone