

Dear Sir or Madam,

Please don't cut back the sea protected areas in Australia. There are already so few places like this in the world. Humanity depends on nature and oceans to be in good health. I don't want my children and future generations to live in a Mad Max like world, where diversity has disappeared. Healthy oceans and their inhabitants have a very important role as they bring us oxygen and are a big part in a complex nature balance.

I truly hope the Australian government will make the sensible choice to keep the oceans protected areas as they are.

Yours sincerely,
Manuela Egea
