

I am utterly amazed and appalled that the current Australian Government is considering cutting back our Marine National Parks. Other countries are adding to them to save the endangered marine life.

Why is our current government going against the wishes of the people who voted them into power?

Are they getting kickbacks into their own pockets? It certainly looks that way!!

If we lose our marine animals we humans will be the next to die out. Already we have Tassal destroying our ocean in Tasmania and commercial overfishing in other areas is causing species to die out. Tougher measures must be introduced.

Nature is very carefully balanced but humans are destroying that balance.

Obviously our current politicians in the Liberal Country Party are only interested in their own pockets and egos and do not care about the following generations to come. At the rate they are going we will not have a human population in the future.

It is time to increase our Marine National Parks and also our National Parks on land to help save all living creatures on this planet.
